

Market Update

Equity

All 10 Ukrainian Exchange blue chip stocks ended lower on Tuesday (Dec 10) in line with losses in main European indices, as Kyiv's political standoff continued, with little common ground to be seen between opposition protesters and President Yanukovich. The UX index slipped 0.8% to close at 885 points. Leading the decline was Avdyivka Coke, which fell 1.5% to UAH 3.05; Motor Sich, CentrEnerg, and DonbasEnerg were each down 1.3%. UkrNafta and Azovstal saw more marginal drops of less than half a percent each and UkrSotsBank ended unchanged near 17 kopecks. Outside the UX basket, ZhytomirOblEnerg lost 7.1%, while heavy truck producer AvtoKraz gained 3.3% to 3.80 kopecks.

Fixed Income

Ukrainian sovereigns were mostly up on Tuesday with Ukraine-23s improving by 1.2p.p. to 81.6/83.4 (10.6%/10.3%). Corporate names were down. MHP-15s and Metinvest-15s declined by 0.8p.p. closing at 98.1/99.3 (12.6%/11.5%) and 97.5/99.6 (12.9%/11.2%).

Riot Police Move in on Independence Square Protest Camp

by Will Ritter
w.ritter@eavex.com.ua

NEWS

Special Interior Ministry troop units moved in to dismantle a protest camp set up on Kyiv's Independence Square in the overnight hours of Wednesday (Dec 11). As of publication, the operation is ongoing and figures on arrests and injuries are not yet available. Around 3,000 people are believed to be occupying the camp. On Tuesday, President Yanukovich had met with visiting EU foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton and held a roundtable with his three predecessors, Leonid Kravchuk, Leonid Kuchma, and Viktor Yushchenko, but signalled no willingness to meet the protesters' key demands of signing a free trade agreement with the EU and/or dismissing the Azarov government. In response to this morning's events, Batkivschyna party leader Arseniy Yatseniuk (quoted by Interfax) said that millions of people will come out onto the street and that "the Yanukovich regime will fall".

COMMENTARY

We see a grave danger that in response to the government's move to clear the protest, the opposition will become more radicalized and may attempt to escalate the already-tense situation in order to deliberately provoke police violence. Yatseniuk has an unfortunate history of making over-the-top comments on which he is unable to deliver, and we doubt that the protesters, even in large numbers, have the leverage needed to topple the Yanukovich regime in a "revolution" scenario. At this point, it looks as though Yanukovich's engagement with the West is probably over; he has a year remaining as Ukraine's legitimately elected president, and having alienated the pro-European center of Ukrainian domestic politics, we expect him to re-focus on his core electorate of pro-Russian voters in southeastern Ukraine. This constituency is a minority of the overall national electorate but is not insignificant in size, comprising as much as 35% of the national voter base. We believe that, barring a U-turn on his EU policy, Yanukovich would have no chance to defeat a moderate pro-EU candidate in a national presidential election. However, given the rising instability, a Belarus-style scenario, in which Yanukovich relies on muscle from Eastern Ukrainian and/or Russian security forces to keep the central part of the country under his thumb, cannot be ruled out. In that case, a fraudulent election could be held and Yanukovich would remain in office for the foreseeable future.

UkrStat Revises GDP Decline from 1.5% to 1.3% YoY in 3Q13

by Dmitry Churin
d.churin@eavex.com.ua

NEWS

Ukraine's GDP decline was revised from 1.5% to 1.3% YoY in 3Q13, according to final data from the State Statistics Committee published on Tuesday (Dec 10). On a quarterly basis, Ukraine's economy decreased by 0.3%, up from an initial reading of 0.4%.

Source: State Statistics Committee, Eavex Research

COMMENTARY

The State Statistics Committee provided a detailed breakdown of the country's GDP by components that indicated a considerable decline of 9.0% YoY in capital investments in 3Q13. Meanwhile, consumer spending continued to support the economy, rising 6.7% YoY in the period, even as government spending fell by 3.0% YoY. Nominal GDP amounted to UAH 392bn (USD 48mn) in the period. We forecast that the country's economy will emerge from the recession in the fourth quarter, bringing the GDP decline to 0.5% for the full year.

EAVEX RECOMMENDATIONS

Name	Ticker	Price, per share	Target price, per share	Upside, %	Rating	Commentary
Steel&Pipes
Azovstal	AZST	0.69	0.56	-19%	SELL	Non-transparent reporting practices detrimentally affect Azovstal's reported earnings.
Iron Ore
Ferrexpo	FXPO LN	174.9	218.0	25%	BUY	Operations at Ferrexpo's new Yeristovo Mine should allow the company to increase its iron ore pellet output by 10% YoY to 10.6mn tonnes in 2013, with further growth to 12.0mn tonnes in 2015.
Pivnichny GOK	SGOK	8.10	14.5	78%	BUY	Secure demand for Pivnichny GOK's iron ore products and lucrative pricing allow the company to operate with high profitability (EBITDA margin of not lower than 45% since 2009). Disadvantages of the stock are its low liquidity and no dividend in 2013 for the first time since 2005.
Centralny GOK	CGOK	6.01	10.6	77%	BUY	Centralny GOK operates in the highly profitable iron ore industry; its EBITDA margin has remained above 35% since 2009. Disadvantages of the stock are its low liquidity and no dividend in 2013 for the first time since 2005.
Coke
Avdyivka Coke	AVDK	3.06	6.2	104%	BUY	AVDK's order book is secure thanks to its integration with Metinvest, Ukraine's largest M&M holding.
Yasynivsky Coke	YASK	0.54	3.4	535%	BUY	Yasynivsky Coke benefits from steady demand for its output both in Ukraine & abroad thanks to the high quality of its coke relative to other domestic producers.
Coal
Pokrovske Mine	SHCHZ	0.50	2.9	489%	BUY	We expect Pokrovske Mine to double its coking coal extraction to 9.5mn tonnes over 2010-15.
Railcar Manufacturing
Krukiv Wagon	KVBZ	16.3	U/R	--	U/R
LuganskTeplovoz	LTPL	1.60	5.2	228%	BUY	LuganskTeplovoz's incorporation into TransMashHolding should help it to exploit its already-dominant position on the Russian market for diesel locomotives.
Specialized Machinery
Motor Sich	MSICH	1556	5250	237%	BUY	Motor Sich should see its sales grow with a 2012-2016E CAGR of 9%, reaching USD 1.2bn. For 2012-2016, we forecast an average EBITDA margin of 35% and a net margin of 28%.
Turboatom	TATM	5.00	8.9	78%	BUY	We model Turboatom's revenue as increasing at 18% CAGR over 2012-2015. Deliveries of hydro and steam turbines to export markets will remain the company's key revenue drivers.
Oil & Gas
Concern Galnaftogaz	GLNG	0.15	0.24	60%	BUY	Galnaftogaz is pursuing a plan to aggressively expand its filling station network.
Regal Petroleum	RPT	15.0	42.0	180%	BUY	We assume that Regal will be able to produce 5,200 boepd in 2014, generating USD 116mn in sales.
JKX Oil & Gas	JKX	72.0	370	414%	BUY	The launch of extraction at JKX's Russian gas field has lifted output, but the company's higher-margin Ukrainian operations continue to lag behind expectations.
Power Utilities
DonbasEnergO	DOEN	27.1	72.0	166%	BUY	DonbasEnergO is expected to pay a significant dividend from its FY13 profit that could amount to as much as UAH 5.0 per share, implying a dividend yield of 20%.
CenterEnergO	CEEN	4.87	15.00	208%	BUY	CenterEnergO's privatization has been postponed, but the company retains a strong fundamental value due to its large installed electricity generation capacity.
Consumer
MHP	MHPC	15.8	22.10	40%	BUY	MHP is ramping up poultry production at its greenfield Vinnytsia complex, which has annual capacity of 220,000 tonnes. We think MHP will be able to expand its output by 50% over 2012-15 to 600,000 tonnes of poultry, with the lion's share of incremental volume to be exported.
Astarta	AST	65.8	90.0	37%	BUY	Astarta's business leans on three pillars: sugar beet cultivation/processing, grain cultivation, and cattle farming. With sugar prices depressed since 2011, a favorable market for grain should continue to drive the company's profitability.
AvangardCo	AVGR	11.7	19.35	65%	BUY	A doubling of egg processing capacity to 6mn eggs/day in 1H13 with further expansion to 10mn in early 2014 bode well for the group's earnings due to 1) the higher profitability of the egg products (EP) segment vs. shell eggs and 2) the longer storage life of EP, which enables the company to retain its output for sale in periods of more favorable pricing. Still, the reported selling price for the company's shell eggs appears to be unjustifiably high. Even with financial quality concerns priced in, the stock looks cheap vs. its global peers.
Ovostar Union	OVO	82.8	109.50	32%	BUY	The company is on its way to implementing a two-stage investment program aimed at expanding egg production capacity to 2.1bn pieces by 2017, or 3x more compared to FY12 production of 719mn eggs. Very low liquidity in the OVO stock is a major concern.

Investing in emerging markets' securities may entail certain risks. There may be limited information available on such securities. Securities of emerging markets' companies may be less liquid and their prices more volatile than securities of comparable developed markets' companies. In addition, exchange rate movements may have an adverse effect on the value of an investment.
