Stock Market Update

Equity

Kyiv-listed stocks ended virtually unchanged last week with the PFTS index closing just 0.1% higher at 528 points. The National Bank's move to cut the key refinancing rate from 17.00% to 16.50% had no impact on the local stock market. The rate cut had been expected to be even larger before July's above-target inflation figure of 9.1% was released.

In individual blue chips, UkrNafta (UNAF) remained at UAH 145 per share, ignoring business media reports that state-run energy giant NaftoGaz put into its financial plan a payment of UAH 17bn to UkrNafta for previously delivered natural gas. However, the payment could still be frozen by the new government. Raiffeisen Bank Aval (BAVL) and CentrEnergo (CEEN) were also inactive over the week, with the latter finishing at UAH 10.86 per share.

In London trading, Ferrexpo (FXPO) dipped below the support level of GBp 200. The stock lost 5.0% to close at GBp 192 amid further slippage in the benchmark iron ore price, which has corrected from a peak of USD 120 per tonne to USD 92 per tonne since mid-July. Poultry producer MHP (MHPC) had a volatile trading week, falling to a level slightly below USD 9.00 and then recovering to USD 9.20 after the company reported a quite impressive 2Q19 net profit of USD 1.31 per share.

Warsaw-listed Ukrainian agro stocks were mixed. Agroton (AGT) dropped by 8.0% to PLN 2.87 after the company posted financial results for 1H19 that showed substantially lower net profit year-on-year. Sugar producer Astarta (AST) climbed 1.3% to PLN 23.30 and Kernel (KER) inched down by 0.2% to PLN 45.00.

The hryvnia once again demonstrated strength, gaining 0.3% to 25.08 UAH/USD after the country's foreign currency reserves grew to USD 22bn. The National Bank said it had purchased USD 300mn from the market in August.

Putin Hands Zelenskiy Big Political Victory with Prisoner Swap

by Will Ritter
w.ritter@eavex.com.ua

NEWS

Ukraine and Russia exchanged 70 political prisoners (35 on each side) on Saturday (Sept 7) via specially arranged flights to Kyiv's Boryspil airport and Moscow's Vnukovo airport respectively. The returned Ukrainian prisoners included filmmaker Oleg Sentsov, war journalist Roman Suschenko, and 22 Ukrainian sailors captured last November by the Russian Coast Guard. The most prominent names on the Russian side were RIA Novosti journalist Kirill Vyshinskiy and Vladimir Tsemakh, an aviation warfare specialist for the Donbass separatist forces who the Dutch government has named as a suspect in the shooting down of the MH17 Netherlands-Malaysia passenger flight in 2014. Ukraine's release of Tsemakh to Russia was criticized by the foreign ministries of several EU countries as well as by Australia. President Zelenskiy was on hand for the arrival of the flight to greet the returning Ukrainians, and the event was widely covered by domestic media.

COMMENTARY

The release of the prisoners is a big domestic political win for Zelenskiy, as the inability to obtain their freedom over the previous two years was a constant thorn in the side of former President Petro Poroshenko. Meanwhile, the Putin regime benefits by appearing to the West to be behaving in a reasonable way, which will help the Kremlin in its push to shake off the remaining European Union and US punitive sanctions. In the bigger picture, however, we see this new detente between Kyiv and Moscow as moving toward a scenario in which the Kremlin will try to resolve the Donbass conflict on terms disadvantageous to Ukrainian sovereignty. Bringing the occupied Donbass territories and their overwhelmingly pro-Russian electorates back into Ukraine would be an extremely expensive and risky proposition; we are not sure that Zelenskiy grasps the complications of this outcome, but we know that Putin certainly does. We think that further steps toward the "normalization" of relations between Russia and Ukraine are likely in the near term, as the Kremlin seems to have an interest in building up Zelenskiy's political standing for the time being at the expense of the more Russia-hawkish elements in the Ukrainian political spectrum.

COMMENTARY

MHP's reported USD 1.31 net profit per share for 2Q19 beat our forecast of USD 1.10 for the period, and we are raising our full-year projection for MHP's net profit from USD 170mn to USD 220mn, which would imply earnings per share of USD 2.08. At the current stock price of USD 9.20, the company is valued at P/E of 4.4x. In our view, one of the explanations for the low valuation of the company could be an increased level of debt. MHP's net debt to EBITDA of 2.9x represents a concern that the ceiling of 3.0x embedded in MHP's Eurobonds could be crossed. Additionally, investors may be concerned about political risk related to the administration of new Ukrainian President Vladimir Zelenskiy, with an investigation already having been opened into MHP's receipt of state subsidies over the last decade; MHP controlling shareholder Yuriy Kosyuk was a close political ally of previous president and Zelenskiy rival Petro Poroshenko.

In a segment breakdown, MHP's poultry business generated USD 688mn ( $\pm$ 12% YoY) in revenue in 1H19 and the grain segment brought in USD 83mn in the period. The company spent USD 59mn on CapEx in 1H19, down from USD 126mn in 1H18.

MHP's lightly-traded stock gained 1% on the earnings report but remains 20% below this year's maximum of USD 11.50 per share.

COMMENTARY

Both Agroton's EBITDA and its net profit for 1H19 missed our expectations, but we are still holding out some hope that the company will be able to deliver our target of net profit of USD 9.5mn for full-year 2019. Agroton's bottom line in 1H19 suffered pressure from a higher cost of sales and smaller gain from revaluation of biological assets. On the other hand, the company's net cash from operating activity declined by a more modest 19% YoY to USD 5.0mn in 1H19.

In our view, Agroton currently has a fairly healthy financial position, with an estimated Net Debt/EBITDA ratio of 1.0x. The company, which is based in Lugansk province, continues to invest in growth, spending USD 2.2mn on CapEx in 1H19.

In a segment breakdown, vegetable oil sales brought USD 5.8mn in sales, accounting for around 40% of the company's total revenue for 1H19. Sunflower seed sales were at USD 5.8mn, accounting for 33% of revenue in the period. Winter wheat sales were USD 2.6mn in 1H19. Agroton now operates a land bank of 119,000 hectares in Ukraine.

The Warsaw-listed AGT stock has been in a downward trend since May, when it reached its local maximum of PLN 3.95 per share. The stock now trades at PLN 2.87, with its most recent minimum at PLN 2.76.

Investing in emerging markets' securities may entail certain risks. There may be limited information available on such securities. Securities of emerging markets' companies may be less liquid and their prices more volatile than securities of comparable developed markets' companies. In addition, exchange rate movements may have an adverse effect on the value of an investment.
